WE wish we knew the name of the local who penned the following, so

"If a man buys a new buggy; or if his cow can bawl three times without winking, the local is expected to proclaim it with a grand flourish. If he starts a two-penny business, his first thought is to bribe the local with a five cent cigar to write up a five-dollar puff. Indeed, he thinks it is a mission of the local to make his fortune for him by free blowing. He will take the local to one side and point out the superior qualities of a rat-terrier dog, and coolly ask him to "give him a hoist." He don't care anything about it, only Spriggins has a dog which he thinks is a buster, and some of 'em wanted his 'put in' just to 'take the conceit out of Spriggins.' Everybody wants to be 'put in,' they are the 'GREAT I AM,' but no one says, 'Here, local put yourself inside of this suit of clothes, or throw yourself outside this oyster stew, or stuff this watch into your pocket. Oh, no, of course not; that would cost something. The shoe is on the other foot, you see. The local is supposed to know everything about other people's business, and is expected to show up all the actors in every family broil in town. If the vile tongue of scandal finds a victim, people wonder why he didn't run about with his note book and gather up the vituperative bits of slander for his paper. If he steps into a billiard hall he is requested to make a note of the astonishing fact that Bill Tompkins has made a run of eleven points. When the minstrel troupe arrives in town, the agent immediately rushes into the printing office, and, calling for the local, he slips three or four tickets in his hand, and whispers: 'Draw us a big house! Put it in strong!' and patting him patronizingly on the shoulder, the agent admits the inferiority of the troupe, but we are not to 'let on.' It is no sin for the local to lie. To please the lecturer the local is forced to sit two mortal hours to hear through an ous to appear favorably in but few are willing to pay for it! The local's time is worth nothing, but to bother his head writing puffs for am-bitious persons. It don't cost him anything to live. He never eats, or

How Pomeroy Satisfied Senator Davis. to ask if you would have me-[From Forney's Chronicle.]

When, one day, weary with the cares of state, the Senator from Kentucky was snoozing in his chair, his name was called to vote. A neighbor Mr. Davis, your name is called." Like a cat arising from a hot gridle, that girl arose from off that fellow, and she poured hot epithets upon him, rose and asked the Vice-President like scalding water rushing from the what they were voting on. The cholera morbus, which prevails in some of our cities, is an aggravated form of diarrheea. The symptoms of this disease should therefore be carefully noted, and a judicious physician when convenient, should be consulted. The American Journal of Pharmacy gives the following directions:

A diarrhea, no matter how slight, cannot be considered cured until the discharges have entirely resumed their natural appearance and frequency for two days, and even then it will recur from slighter causes than at first, and be more obstinate after each relapse. No matter how mild or slight the diarrhea may be, the physician should be informed of it, if he be at hand or can easily be reached. But if he be not at hand, time should not be lost in not at hand, time should not be lost in waiting for him; and with prompt and proper attention he may then not be needed at all. A simple mild diarrhoea is easily arrested by rest, diet, and a small dose of laudanum, with or without spirits of camphor, taken after every discharge from the bowels; and such doses can always he had in a and such doses can always be had in a very few moments from every apoth-ecary shop. But the experience of many epidemics has shown that a judi-cious combination of three or four medicines, all of which have been long used in various proportions, and about aptly put, as he deserves full credit for which there is no secresy or complica-it: which there is no secresy or complica-tion, is better addapted to the generality of such cases than any one or two of them; while such combination is adapted to later stages and more severe cases of the disease, to which laudanum and camphor alone would not so well apply.

Such a judicious combination com piled from the recorded knowledge on the subject, will be found in the following mixture, which all good apothecaries can make and keep ready for use. And the public generally is strongly advised to adopt and rely upon this as being better and more safe than the advertised specifics and nos-trums of the day; and as being all that the present state of knowledge will afford, and all that common sense and reason can expect from any remedy not adjusted to each special case, as remedies always should be if possible.

Apothecaries are also strongly advised to adopt the formula, name and lable-to prepare the mixture careful ly from good materials, and to sell it with the label and directions here given, and to sell no other preparation for these uses, except upon the written prescription of a physician. The label and directions here given in full detail, are adapted to a four ounce vial, and the apothecary only has to have them copied by his own label printer, with his business card appended at the botaom.

If the movements increase in frequency or in copiousness after the second dose of the medicine has been taken, a physician should be sent for at once, and a double dose be taken after each movement until he arrives. Immediately after taking the first dose the person should go to bed and remain there for twelve hours after the diarrhea has entirely ceased.

Advice to Marriagable Girls.

Celebrated Chill Tonic! Ayer's Ague Cure,

> No one remedy is louder called for by the necessities of the American people than a sare and safe cure for Pever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that ance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity. That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the munities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure; for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "CHR" expeis the miasmatic poison of Fever and Ague from the system, and prevents the develop-ment of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. A great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and cer-tain cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral; consequently it pro-duces no quinism or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never Fever and Ague is not alone the con-sequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its britation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheuma-tism, Gout, Readache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and derange-JOSEPH TARPLEY. JAS. B.
